By Abubakari Seidu Ajarfor, The Punch Newspaper

The founder of the Worldwide Miracle Outreach, Reverend Dr. Lawrence Tetteh, has urged the Ghana Police Service to avoid the controversial acts of indiscipline and the massive canker of corruption that have waned public confidence and trust in the security agencies of the country.

This follows the numerous researched reports by anti-corruption organisations which frequently stains the Ghana Police Service carrying the barten as the most corrupt institution in the country followed by politicians and the media.

Constantly, there have been public criticisms against the professional misconduct of some part of the police personnel who were spotted receiving either bribes or extorting monies from people in-line of duty.

Delivering the word of ministration, Reverend Dr. Lawrence Tetteh, who was overflowing with the anointing of the Holy Spirit, urged the police personnel to desist from all acts of indiscipline and most importantly, stop receiving little bribes from individuals inorder to dignify the name of the police service.

Preaching on the "Dangers of Offence," Reverend Lawrence Tetteh said offences are destroying the nation and people are fighting eachother over matters that are irrelevant to national development.

"Friends are fighting friends, politicians are fighting politicians, even pastors are pastors. Those we expect to know have become unwise, this nonsense in this nation must stop," he stated.

He said this at a special Prayer Durbar attended by the Minister of Interior, Inspector General of Police (IGP), Chief of Defence Staff (DCS), Chief Executive Officer of Forestry Commission, the Managing Director of Ideal Finance Holdings and others organized by Ghana Police Service Accra Regional Command.

The Minister of Interior, Mr. Mark Owen Woyongo stated, "lets us make the efforts to reap out the bad nuts so that we can redeem our image to better the security of this nation."

He noted the daunting challenges facing the police service explaining that crimes have sophisticated in this modern era.

Mr. Wayongo therefore admonished the police personnel to be more vigilant because the opportunity of people with clandestine mind may be very elusive and difficult to detect early.

The Minister urged the police personnel to improve on their information gathering tactics by cultivating a more friendly approach with people in civil live so that they are able to acquire reliable information needed to tackle crime.

Mr. Wayongo calls for the need to strengthen the Community Policing Agenda in this era of terrorism inorder to defend Ghana against such threats.

The Accra Regional Police Commander, DCOP/Mr. Christian Tetteh Yohuno, in his remarks said aside seeking justice and fairness for mankind, the police owe it as moral and spiritual responsibilities to worship and praise our supreme protector, the author and finisher of our faith.

"It is sometimes public perception that, police officers are religiously weak and distant apart from their maker. On the contrary, this perception is unfounded because the Police aside our core function in the maintenance of law and order, always observe and recognize deep spiritual relationships with our Father. And this has reflected in our daily operational successes," he stated.
